

Robert Hellmann

President, Hellmann Career Consulting

Robert Hellmann, President of Hellmann Career Consulting, has helped over 1,000 individuals to achieve career success and dozens of organizations to improve effectiveness via executive coaching and workshops. Rob is a LinkedIn-Certified Professional Recruiter, and has been in private practice since 2003. As a career coach and executive coach, Rob helps clients almost every day to define and achieve their career and job-search goals, develop as managers and leaders, and navigate through challenging work situations. Rob combines a warm, empowering style with a pragmatic, bottom-line focus that gets results for clients. Rob is a sought-after speaker, and has delivered hundreds of seminars, workshops and keynotes to corporations, higher-education institutions, professional associations, government agencies and non-profits. He has affiliations with the graduate business schools at both Columbia University and Cornell University via his inclusion in their highly selective networks of career coaches they recommend to alumni. Rob is a regular contributor to Forbes. His insights have also appeared in media outlets such as The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, the Washington Post, the Chicago Tribune, CBS News, CNNMoney, ABC News, NBC News, WPIX News, Consumer Reports, Glassdoor.com and many others. Visit his website at www.hellmannconsulting.com.